Welcome to the 2019 winter/spring dance series at the Detroit Opera House. Though Michigan Opera Theatre has earned an esteemed position among the nation’s great opera companies, we are also one of the few opera companies in the country to also present a dance series. Since 1996, the expansive stage of the Detroit Opera House has welcomed the world’s great companies, along with the art form’s most celebrated dancers – a tradition of which we are immensely proud.

MOT’s commitment to dance programming has resulted in the presentation of companies such as American Ballet Theatre, Dance Theatre of Harlem, Bolshoi Ballet, Royal Winnipeg Ballet, Mariinsky Ballet and many others. This year, we are thrilled to welcome ballet legend Alessandra Ferri as well as her esteemed partners in our Valentine’s Day weekend program. We are also excited to welcome back Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater for its 12th visit to the Detroit Opera House, in tandem with its 60th anniversary celebration.

Dance programming is made possible through the continued support and generosity of our sponsors, partners and patrons. These supporters include the Lear Corporation, which has sponsored our dance series since 2015, as well as Ms. Joanne Danto & Dr. Arnold Weingarden, annual supporters of our MOT dance series, as well as Kevin Dennis and Jeremy Zeltzer. I’m also pleased to acknowledge the generosity of the Community Foundation for Southeast Michigan for their fourth year of supporting our landmark collaboration with the University Musical Society. This support enables us to present significant dance presentations, along with community and educational dance offerings throughout Southeast Michigan, including the upcoming performance of the Martha Graham Dance Company in Ann Arbor this spring.

Most of all we are grateful to you, the thousands of dance patrons who both attend and support the many dance offerings that are presented each season at the Detroit Opera House and throughout the region. We invite your feedback and welcome your suggestions as to how we can make your journey with us even more meaningful. We remain committed to celebrating the masterworks of dance and look forward to exploring that which we may encounter beyond the traditional dance repertoire.

Thank you for joining us today. We appreciate your patronage and look forward to your next visit to the Detroit Opera House.

Regards,

Wayne S. Brown
President and CEO, Michigan Opera Theatre

Our 2018-19 dance series continues with our celebration of modern dance as well as a special program featuring some of the best ballet dancers in the world.

We open with Alessandra Ferri: The Art of the Pas de Deux. Ms. Ferri, a legend in the dance world, is one of only 11 ballerinas ever to receive the title prima ballerina assoluta, a rare honor given to the best among a generation. She performs with principal dancers from renowned ballet companies including American Ballet Theatre, English National Ballet, Boston Ballet and Sarasota Ballet. Just in time for Valentine’s Day weekend, the program features a series of romantic duets from contemporary works and ballet classics like Swan Lake and La Sylphide.

Following the Bill T. Jones / Arnie Zane Company in October, Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater is the next in our series celebrating generations of modern dance. Alvin Ailey celebrates its 60th anniversary this season, and we are proud to present the company’s first two-act ballet, Lazarus. Inspired by the life of founder Alvin Ailey, the work explores the racial inequities of this country, beginning with Mr. Ailey’s experiences when he founded the company in 1958. It is the completion of a trilogy by acclaimed hip-hop choreographer Rennie Harris, following Home in 2011 and Exodus in 2015. Lazarus is a poignant work that we hope will resonate with you long after the performance has finished.

Our modern series concludes in May with the presentation of the iconic Martha Graham Dance Company. The company, the oldest modern dance company in the country, helped shaped the movement for generations to come. We are proud to partner with University Musical Society to present the company at the Power Center in Ann Arbor.

We invite you to relax and enjoy tonight’s performance and hope you can join us for our upcoming presentations as well!

Principal Conductor, Michigan Opera Theatre
Alessandra Ferri: A Prima Ballerina Assoluta Defined

At 55, Italian dancer Alessandra Ferri has enjoyed a ballet career longer than most. The renowned ballerina has performed with the world’s most prestigious companies including the Royal Ballet, American Ballet Theatre and La Scala Theatre Ballet, as well as with the best choreographers and dancers in the industry.

“Ballet is not my job, it’s not my life,” Ferri said. “Being a ballerina is my DNA.”

DNA or not, a long, successful career is not the only thing that sets Ferri apart from other dancers. She is also one of the few to be designated as a prima ballerina assoluta.

While many are familiar with the term prima ballerina, when it comes to a prima ballerina assoluta, the title can be as rare as its recipients. Prima ballerina literally translates to “first ballerina” from Italian and, in the United States, is better known as someone who is a female principal dancer. These dancers are the best in their companies who perform the lead roles in ballets, along with their male counterparts. Translating to “absolute first ballerina,” a prima ballerina assoluta is the best of the best, a title so rare that only 11 women have held this honor since it was first recorded in the 19th century.

“Prima ballerina assoluta is given to those whose art exuberates a level of achievement in their interpretation of characters and fame,” said Marco Pelle, resident choreographer with New York Theatre Ballet and a director and frequent choreographer with Michigan Opera Theatre. “They have to have an incredible personality on stage to have been awarded this title.”

The history of the term goes back to the late 1800s with renowned French dancer and choreographer Marius Petipa. Considered to be one of the most influential ballet masters in ballet history, Petipa is known for choreographing the now iconic dances in ballets like Swan Lake, The Sleeping Beauty and Giselle. Petipa bestowed the first recorded use of the title to Italian ballerina Pierina Legnani in 1894, whom he considered to be the best in her generation. Legnani was renowned for her perfection of technique and execution, reputed to be the first dancer to perform 32 fouetté turns in a row, a difficult feat requiring a dancer to use their leg to whip themselves around in a circle.

But impressive turns are not what defines a prima ballerina assoluta. In fact, there are no definitive regulations on who may hold the title or who has the authority to bestow it. In fact, after Legnani, her contemporary Mathilde Kschessinska received the title from the Imperial Russian Court, a move Petipa attempted to block, considering Legnani to be the superior dancer.

“Most of them have been named after performing at high international level, above the rest of the prima ballerinas as a result of public and critical opinion,” said Sergey Rayevskiy, artistic director of Ballet Detroit.

Since its inception, the title has been awarded by both ballet companies and the government, oftentimes the latter sanctioning the decision of the former. It is not used in the United States but has been awarded by companies including the Marinsky Ballet, Bolshoi Ballet, Kirov Ballet, Royal Ballet and, in the case of Ferri, La Scala Theatre Ballet in Milan. Awarding governments have included the Soviet Union/Russia, South Africa, the Senate of Berlin and the Queen of England.

With Ferri, Pelle said she goes beyond dancing a role, she becomes the role.

“You don’t see Alessandra, you see the character she’s portraying, you see the feeling, you don’t see steps,” he said.

“You might have your own idea of Giselle or Juliet, but when you see her, you just see Juliet, or Giselle or Carmen; you have an insight on who they are inside.”

When it comes to her signature roles, Ferri said she dances them well because she identifies with the characters and the choreography.

“The choreography suits you so well that it permits you to embody that role,” she said. “It’s not just an idea you have to embody through the choreography, it has to suit you. It’s very hard to interpret something, if you have to be concentrated on the technical parts.”

While honored by the title, Ferri said its largest impact has been giving her a sense of maturity as an artist and increasing her confidence on stage.

“I have total openness and courage and can be totally myself on stage,” she said. “I haven’t lost touch with the magic of when I dance, so I’m never bored of it.”
Bryan Johnston – Violinist

While a student at the University of Michigan, Michigan Opera Theatre Violinist Bryan Johnston couldn’t decide if he wanted to study music or math. Now in his 18th season with MOT, his decision may be surprising: he chose math, a lot of math.

“I finished my doctorate in math in the spring of 2000, and I started playing with MOT in the fall of 2000,” he said. While a devoted math student, Bryan practiced violin and performed throughout his college years, continuing to craft the talent he began at age five. Now he is a professional violinist – and a computer programmer.

“It means you’re really busy, but you make it work,” he said. “There are other musicians in the pit who are in the same boat. I think for most of us opera comes first, and you make your day job fit around it.”

Sally Heffelfinger Pituch - Oboist

Michigan Opera Theatre Oboist Sally Heffelfinger Pituch can thank opera for her career path. The Vassar, Michigan native began her musical career playing bassoon as a child but decided to switch to oboe after seeing a performance of Amahl and the Night Visitors in sixth grade.

“Amahl plays a wooden flute at the beginning and ending of the opera, but it’s really the oboe playing the part down in the pit,” she said. “It’s a very pretty melody, I fell in love with the sound.”

Since then, Sally has honed her craft, receiving a bachelor’s degree in Oboe Performance from the University of Michigan and studying with former Detroit Symphony Orchestra Principal Oboist Donald Baker. After graduation, Sally began her musical career with the Honolulu Symphony where she met and married Detroit Symphony Orchestra Principal Hornist Karl Pituch. Her career continued performing with orchestras all over the country including the Jacksonville and Fort Worth symphonies, as well as the Dallas Opera Orchestra.

After 17 years, Sally returned to her home state in 2000, performing with MOT as well as the Detroit, Flint, Ann Arbor and Toledo symphonies.

“The best thing about moving back to Michigan is that my parents were finally able to come to my performances,” she said. Outside of music, Sally enjoys knitting and yoga and has been a trained dog groomer for more than 20 years.

ABOUT THE COMPANY: 60 YEARS AILEY ASCENDING

When Alvin Ailey and a small group of African-American dancers took the stage on March 30, 1958 at New York City’s 92nd Street Y, the engagement was for one night only, but it turned out to be the start of a new era in the arts. Mr. Ailey envisioned a company dedicated to enriching the American modern dance heritage and preserving the uniqueness of the African-American cultural experience. He became one of the trailblazers of modern dance, and the work of his Company grew to encompass education, community outreach, and cultural diplomacy. To date, the Company has gone on to perform for an estimated 25 million people at theaters in 48 states and 71 countries on six continents - as well as millions more through television, film, and online. More than 235 works by over 90 choreographers have been part of the Ailey repertory. In 2008, a U.S. Congressional resolution designated the Company as “a vital American cultural ambassador to the world.” Before his untimely death in 1989, Mr. Ailey named Judith Jamison as his successor, and over the next 21 years, she brought the Company to unprecedented success. Ms. Jamison, in turn, personally selected Robert Battle to succeed her in 2011, and The New York Times declared he “has injected the company with new life.”

Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater gratefully acknowledges The Joan & Sandy Weill Global Ambassador Fund, which provides vital support for Ailey’s national and international tours.
Alvin Ailey
FOUNDER
Alvin Ailey was born on January 5, 1931, in Rogers, Texas. His experiences of life in the rural South would later inspire some of his most memorable works. He was introduced to dance in Los Angeles by performances of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and the Katherine Dunham Dance Company, and his formal dance training began with an introduction to Lester Horton’s classes by his friend Carmen de Lavallade. Horton, the founder of one of the first racially integrated dance companies in the United States, became a mentor for Mr. Ailey as he embarked on his professional career. After Horton’s death in 1953, Mr. Ailey became director of the Lester Horton Dance Theater and began to choreograph his own works. In the 1950s and 60s Mr. Ailey performed in four Broadway shows, including House of Flowers and Jamaica. In 1958 he founded Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater to carry out his vision of a company dedicated to enriching the American modern dance heritage and preserving the uniqueness of the African-American cultural experience. He established the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center (now The Ailey School) in 1969 and formed the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble (now Ailey II) in 1974. Mr. Ailey was a pioneer of programs promoting arts in education, particularly those benefiting underserved communities. Throughout his lifetime he was awarded numerous distinctions, including the Kennedy Center Honor in 1988 in recognition of his extraordinary contribution to American culture. In 2014 he posthumously received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the country’s highest civilian honor, in recognition of his contributions and commitment to civil rights and dance in America. When Mr. Ailey died on December 1, 1989, The New York Times said of him, “you didn’t need to have known [him] personally to have been touched by his humanity, enthusiasm, and exuberance and his courageous stand for multi-racial brotherhood.”

Robert Battle
ARTISTIC DIRECTOR
Robert Battle became artistic director of Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater in July 2011 after being personally selected by Judith Jamison, making him only the third person to head the Company since it was founded in 1958. Mr. Battle has a longstanding association with the Ailey organization. A frequent choreographer and artist-in-residence at Ailey since 1999, he has set many of his works on Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater and Ailey II, and at The Ailey School. The Company’s current repertory includes his ballets Ella, In/ Side, Mass, No Longer Silent, and Juba. In addition to expanding the Ailey repertory with works by artists as diverse as Ronald K. Brown, Rennie Harris, Jessica Lang, and Wayne McGregor, Mr. Battle has also instituted the New Directions Choreography Lab to help develop the next generation of choreographers. Mr. Battle’s journey to the top of the modern dance world began in the Liberty City neighborhood of Miami, Florida. He showed artistic talent early and studied dance at a high school arts magnet program before moving on to Miami’s New World School of the Arts, under the direction of Daniel Lewis and Gerri Houlihan, and finally to the dance program at The Juilliard School, under the direction of Benjamin Harkavy, where he met his mentor, Carolyn Adams. He danced with The Parsons Dance Company from 1994 to 2001, and also set his choreography on that company starting in 1998. Mr. Battle then founded his own Battleworks Dance Company, which made its debut in 2002 in Düsseldorf, Germany, as the U.S. representative to the World Dance Alliance’s Global Assembly. Battleworks subsequently performed extensively at venues, including The Joyce Theater, Dance Theater Workshop, American Dance Festival, and Jacob’s Pillow Dance Festival. Mr. Battle was honored as one of the “Masters of African-American Choreography” by the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in 2005, and he received the prestigious Statue Award from the Princess Grace Foundation-USA in 2007. He has honorary doctorates from The University of the Arts and Marymount Manhattan College. Mr. Battle was named a 2015 visiting fellow for The Art of Change, an initiative by the Ford Foundation. He is a sought-after keynote speaker and has addressed a number of high-profile organizations, including the United Nations Leaders Programme and the UNICEF Senior Leadership Development Programme.

Masazumi Chaya
ASSOCIATE ARTISTIC DIRECTOR
Masazumi Chaya was born in Fukuoka, Japan, where he began his classical ballet training. Upon moving to New York in December 1970, he studied modern dance and performed with the Richard Englund Repertory Company. Mr. Chaya joined Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater in 1972 and performed with the Company for 15 years. In 1988 he became the Company’s rehearsal director after serving as assistant rehearsal director. A master teacher both on tour with the Company and in his native Japan, he served as choreographic assistant to Alvin Ailey and John Butler. In 1991 Mr. Chaya was named associate artistic director of the Company. He continues to provide invaluable creative assistance in all facets of its operations. Mr. Chaya has restaged numerous ballets by Alvin Ailey, including Flowers for the State Ballet of Missouri (1990) and The River for the Royal Swedish Ballet (1993), Ballet Florida (1995), National Ballet of Prague (1995), Pennsylvania Ballet (1996), and Colorado Ballet (1998). Alvin Ailey: A Cultural Icon Marks its 60th Anniversary

BY ERICA HOBBS

A lvin Ailey American Dance Theater, a favorite among local audiences, has been performing regularly at the Detroit Opera House since Michigan Opera Theatre’s second dance series in 1998. In addition to being their 12th visit to the Opera House, this season the company marks its 60th anniversary, celebrating a history of pushing boundaries, defining modern dance and inspiring personal reflection.

Founded by Alvin Ailey in 1958, the company’s work celebrates the uniqueness of the African-American cultural experience and the preservation and enrichment of the American modern dance heritage. From works championing Civil Rights, like R-evolution, Dream, inspired by speeches from Martin Luther King Jr., to an ode to Southern churches in Revelations, Alvin Ailey both explores African-American experiences and shares the culture with the larger world.

“These are really honest explorations of Alvin Ailey’s experience as a black person in this country,” said Debra Bernstein-Siegel, a dance professor at Oakland University and an MOT Trustee, “the good, the bad and the ugly.”

Born in rural Texas in 1931, Ailey grew up in poverty during a period of intense racial segregation and violence against African-Americans, experiences that would later be reflected in his creative work. His mother moved them to Los Angeles when he was 12, where he was introduced to dance. He studied and performed with Lester Horton, founder of one of the first racially-integrated dance companies in the United States, where he trained in styles ranging from classical ballet to Native American Dance. Following Horton’s death in 1953, Ailey took over the company and began choreographing his own works. When he founded his own company five years later, he had a vision of preserving the African-American cultural experience through modern dance.

Though Ailey himself choreographed nearly 80 works for his company, more than 90 choreographers have contributed to its repertory, which now includes more than 235 works.

“Alvin Ailey started the company to provide a place for his friends to dance, but it was always a repertory company,” Bernstein-Siegel said. “He was always bringing in white choreographers and brown choreographers, it wasn’t just his stuff. It transcends boundaries, it’s just about human beings dancing.”

Within the United States, Alvin Ailey’s accolades have reached far and wide. The founder received a Presidential Medal of Freedom and the Kennedy Center Honor for Lifetime Contribution to American Culture. He also received the NAACP’s Spingarn Award for an outstanding achievement by an African-American and the Samuel H. Scripps American Dance Festival Award for a lifetime contribution to American modern dance.

Internationally, the company has been an American ambassador since its earliest years. In 1962, Alvin Ailey was chosen to go on an extensive tour of the Far East, Southeast Asia and Australia as part of President John F. Kennedy’s progressive “President’s Special International Program for Cultural Presentations.” Since then, the company has taken numerous tours across the world, including a 10 country tour of Africa in 1967 and a tour of North Africa and Europe in 1970. In 1985, Alvin Ailey became the first modern dance company to go on a U.S. government-sponsored tour of the People’s Republic of China since the normalization of Sino-American relations. In 2008, a U.S. Congressional resolution designated the company as “a vital American cultural ambassador to the world.”

Bernstein-Siegel said the company’s global appeal is its exploration of humanity, beyond the African-American experience.

“Anybody who felt enslaved or under somebody else’s thumb can relate to that feeling,” she said. “They were Ambassadors for America trying to be better, that we were trying to understand and be better human beings through dance.”

As part of their 60th anniversary tour, the company commissioned their first two-act ballet, Lazarus, which celebrates the life of their founder with a work inspired by his own experiences. It examines Civil Rights through time and questions how much has changed or hasn’t changed since Ailey formed his company in the late 50s. It is the third in a series of works by acclaimed hip-hop choreographer Rennie Harris, following Home, about the club culture around AIDS, and Exodus, about police brutality and activism.

In an interview with the New York Times, Harris said Lazarus is about resurrection and Ailey’s continual influence on different generations.

“He’s still affecting folk: black, brown, white, indifferent, whatever,” he said. “He’s still affecting the world on a massive scale.”

Membership in the Avanti Society is open to all.

In thanks for their generous support, Avanti Society members are given special benefits and recognition for their heartfelt commitment to Michigan Opera Theatre.

Avanti Society Members are Recognized:

Greetings from the MOT Volunteer Association.

I have been a music lover for many years and Michigan Opera Theatre is very important to me. Our MOTVA volunteers provide the company a tremendous level of support. We have over 700 members who serve as ushers, tour guides, and Boutique volunteers. Our Divas and Divos provide artist hospitality, and the Opera League and Dance Council members host parties to celebrate events such as opening night performances. Last year our members logged almost 20,000 volunteer hours. Bravi!

If you are hearing about our volunteer programs for the first time and you would be interested in joining us, please give us a call. Volunteering is a great way to meet other interesting and involved patrons. Membership information is located on the MOTVA web page at michiganopera.org/get-involved/volunteers/ or call Colin Knapp at (313) 965-4271 or email cknapp@motopera.org. Colin will be happy to speak with you and connect you with a volunteer opportunity to meet your needs.

I offer my sincere thanks to all of our current volunteers. You are THE BEST!

Sincerely,
