Welcome to the Detroit Opera House at the David DiChiera Center for the Performing Arts! Michigan Opera Theatre (MOT) is delighted to welcome you to our most adventurous and artistically exceptional dance season yet. Our enhanced commitment to dance programming this season is marked by the inclusion of some of the most esteemed troupes and choreographers active in the United States and Europe. It also advances our partnership with University Musical Society to present larger ballet productions and a greater variety of contemporary dance performances.

The Joffrey Ballet returns for the first time since 2014, offering three recent premieres choreographed by some of Europe’s most in-demand talent. We are also pleased to offer masterclasses with The Joffrey dancers to dance students at Wayne State University and the Detroit Public Schools Community District. These are among the wide array of dance education programs MOT continues to introduce throughout the community.

For nearly two decades, MOT presents a holiday favorite, The Nutcracker. BalletMet of Columbus returns for a limited one-weekend engagement, which proudly features young dancers gathered from across Metro Detroit and the Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra playing Tchaikovsky’s unforgettable score.

MOT is grateful to Joanne and Richard Brodie and the Maxine and Stuart Frankel Foundation as new season sponsors of the 2019–2020 Dance Season and its complementary community engagement programs.

Recently, MOT announced Jon Teeuwissen’s appointment as Artistic Advisor for Dance. This new role will guide the curation of our dance presentations and strengthen MOT’s collaborative relationships within the dance industry. Jon comes to us with more than 40 years in dance management, including leadership roles with The Joffrey, Dance Theatre of Harlem and American Ballet Theatre. We look forward to the growth and vision he will bring to our dance programs.

MOT is appreciative of the William Davidson Foundation for its generous support of the 2019-2020 Season. In addition, we thank the Ford Motor Company for its Fall Opera Season support, including Sondheim’s Sweeney Todd. Now we invite you to relax, enjoy the performance and we hope to see you again soon at the Detroit Opera House.

Wayne S. Brown
President and CEO
Michigan Opera Theatre

As Michigan Opera Theatre’s new Artistic Advisor for Dance, I’m thrilled to begin my first season with the company. Dance is my passion, and it is a joy to be able to share that with others. This fall, we are proud to present two incredible dance performances: The Joffrey Ballet’s Beyond the Shore and BalletMet’s The Nutcracker.

The Joffrey Ballet is a unique company and one that is particularly close to my heart. I am a huge fan of both The Joffrey and of dance history, and I had the honor and privilege to work closely with co-founder Gerald Arpino, whom I considered a mentor.

From 2001-2008, I served as The Joffrey’s Executive Director, leading a financial turnaround, spearheading a $35 million capital campaign to create The Joffrey’s first permanent home, planning the 50th Anniversary that drew 50,000 people to Chicago’s Millennium Park over one week filled with extensive activities, and last but certainly not least, participating on the artistic succession committee that brought Ashley Wheater to The Joffrey as Artistic Director. A unanimous first choice, Ashley has done an outstanding job of raising the artistic level of performance and expanding the company’s repertoire with his selection of extraordinary programming.

Beyond the Shore invites audiences to experience a range of emotions. Vespertine is a lavish piece that pays homage to the Baroque period. The ballet Beyond the Shore (the program’s namesake) takes viewers to six different worlds, inviting curiosity and exploration. The self-explanatory Joy is a celebration of happiness, with infectious movements that spread the feeling to the audience.

Detroit’s holiday season launches with BalletMet’s The Nutcracker over Thanksgiving weekend. Beloved by the young and the young at heart, no holiday season would be complete without experiencing this traditional production of a perennial favorite. With lavish sets, beautiful choreography and Tchaikovsky’s lush score performed by our own MOT orchestra, it’s a magical experience we’re pleased to share with you.

We invite you sit back and enjoy the performance!

Ashley Wheater, The Mary B. Galvin Artistic Director

In 2007, Wheater was appointed Artistic Director of The Joffrey Ballet. New work is the lifeblood of a company, and he has introduced numerous premieres to the repertoire. In 2008, the Boeing Corporation recognized his commitment to community outreach and diversity in the world of dance, presenting him the “Game Changer” award. In 2010, Wheater, representing The Joffrey Ballet, was named Lincoln Academy Laureate, the highest honor presented by the State of Illinois. The Chicago Tribune selected Wheater as 2013 “Chicagoan of the Year” for his contributions to dance. In 2014, Wheater accepted the Chicago Spirit of Innovation Award for The Joffrey Ballet and in 2015, he received the University of Chicago Rosenberger Medal for Outstanding Achievement in the Creative and Performing Arts. He also serves as the Artistic Director of the Joffrey Academy of Dance, the Official School of The Joffrey Ballet.

Ballet Notes

Vespertine

Vespertine was the second ballet that I created for Norwegian National Ballet. It came very quickly after Firebird, which was a big production. Obviously with that momentous Stravinsky score, the opulence and scale of everything was enormous, so I wanted to do something a little more paired down and slightly more nuanced and delicate. Vespertine was part of a Baroque evening. I got in touch with a small chamber orchestra based in Norway that dealt with Baroque-era music, but with a slight updated twist and electronic undertones, and it came from there.

Music is a big driving force for me. It's your script. You don't have words, you have music. I pride myself on being a choreographer that really is a musical one and will pay respect to the score I'm using regardless of what it is. It's a real driving point. Every step I choreograph, that music is in the back of my head. I try and go in with a good understanding of the musical layout of it, even if I don't have steps. The musical arc and the climaxes and the suspense it builds is a narrative layout for the piece itself.

—Liam Scarlett, choreographer

Beyond the Shore

Beyond the Shore follows the score of Mason Bates’ The B-Sides and a soundscape serving as a prologue, originally composed by Bates for this piece. Through the ballet, as well as through the music, the piece makes us land in a new world different from the previous one – each movement inhabits a new environment.

I thought it would be a great concept and challenge to build a piece in which I would treat each movement as six consecutive short stories, each time aiming to capture the essence and the mood of the music and the atmosphere it carries. For example, as Bates explains, the second movement, “Aerosol Melody (Hanalei),” blooms on the Northshore of Kauai, while the third movement, “Gemini in the Solar Wind,” is a re-imagination of the first American spacewalk using actual communication samples from the 1965 Gemini IV voyage provided by NASA.

The approach of Beyond the Shore is a metaphor for exploration inherent to human nature. It means not staying set at the dock but taking off to new horizons and discovering new landscapes both literal and abstract. I explored my vocabulary as a choreographer by looking at new ways to think and interact with each other expanding how we communicate in the complex world we live in. The work doesn’t aim for a strict narrative, yet the atmosphere and mood of each piece is showing just beneath the surface like a watermark.

As Balanchine said, “Storyless is not abstract. Two dancers on the stage are enough material for a story; for me, they are already a story in themselves.”

Joy
“How can we express joy through our movements?”

I asked the dancers this question on our first day creating. I leaned back in my chair, observed the dancers, and started to smile. To observe dancers feeling joy on stage is contagious. Joy (previously titled Episode 47) is my 47th piece. A piece created in only two weeks in Chicago. For the first time in a long time, I wanted to just turn off my 47th piece. A piece created in only two weeks in Chicago. For the first time in a long time, I wanted to just arrive in the studio without preparing too much. I wanted to see what the dancers would bring to the piece. The turnout is something completely different than I expected - that is the pure joy of creating in the moment. To open to dancers’ talents and unique expressions can bring personality and depth to the work. Through playing we have come up with this quirky universe.

Seeing a new work come alive in front of us, together, is the best job in the world. I have to give a big thank you to Julia Eichten who has helped me create this work.

I hope you will feel joy when you watch this piece.

–Alexander Ekman, choreographer

Alexander Ekman

Alexander Ekman is an international choreographer/director creating dance pieces for opera houses theatres and museums. He also directs films and music videos as well as live performances in pop-up locations.

Ekman is known for his fast-paced timing, witty humor, and clever transitions. He aims to create work which the majority can relate to and connect with. Since 2006, he has devoted his time creating pieces which both entertain and question the observer. He aims to transform the atmosphere in the audience and to always surprise the audience.

Around 50 dance companies worldwide have performed works by Ekman. A few of them are the Royal Swedish Ballet, Cullberg Ballet, Compañía Nacional de Danza Goteborg Ballet, Iceland Dance Company, Bern Ballet, Cedar Lake Contemporary Dance, Ballet de l’Opéra du Rhin, The Norwegian National Ballet, Boston Ballet, Royal Ballet of Flanders, Sydney Dance Company, The Royal Ballet of Denmark, and Vienna Ballet. He also created for festivals such as the French Europa Danse and the Athens International Dance Festival.

His work Cacti has become a worldwide hit and has been performed by 18 dance companies. Cacti was nominated for the Dutch dance prize Zwaan 2010, for the National Dance Award (UK) 2012, and also for the British prestigious Olivier Award. Cacti continues to entertain audiences around the world with its important message.

In 2014, Ekman created his own version of Swan Lake, a new take of the most famous ballet of them all. A Swan Lake received enormous attention worldwide. Ekman filled the stage with 6,000 liters of water creating a real lake on stage. A Swan Lake is available on DVD and the documentary Rare Birds by T.M. Rives shows the process of how it became possible to create a lake inside an opera house.

He has also collaborated closely with top fashion designer Henrik Vibskov who created the costumes for Ekman’s A Swan Lake. Vibskov then adapted the choreography for his fall collection which was shown in Paris and Copenhagen during fashion week.

In 2015, Ekman created his own version of Midsummer Night’s Dream at the Royal Swedish Ballet, which became an instant hit with the audience and critics.

He received the Swedish Medea Award for “Inventor and renewer” in September 2015, as well as the Sástaholm Award and the Birgit Cullberg Scholarship, and in 2016, he received the German theatre award “Der Faust” for his ballet COW for the Semperoper Ballet.

The Joffrey Ballet: A Forward-Thinking Company That Continues to Push Boundaries

BY JON TEEUWISSEN, Michigan Opera Theatre Artistic Advisor for Dance

As the new Artistic Advisor for Dance, I’m excited to lead the dance direction of Michigan Opera Theatre and continue to bring some of the world’s best dance companies to the Detroit Opera House stage. We’re thrilled to open our dance season with a company that’s particularly close to my heart, The Joffrey Ballet.

I served as the Executive Director of The Joffrey from 2001 to 2008, and with this program, Beyond the Shore, Detroit audiences will experience three incredible pieces that truly represent the broad spectrum of styles danced by The Joffrey, ranging from classical to contemporary ballet.

When The Joffrey was formed in 1956, it had very humble beginnings. Its legendary first tour included six dancers in a borrowed station wagon pulling a small U-Haul trailer. The dancers took turns driving, each of them responsible for packing and unpacking, cleaning and pressing their own costumes, warming-up and performing in unorthodox spaces such as high school gymnasiums without proper dance floors. Earning the moniker of “The Johnny Appleseed of dance,” the young company took ballet into remote areas to introduce new audiences to the art form.

As the company continued to develop under the artistic direction of founder Robert Joffrey, it carved out a unique niche in the New York dance arena. American Ballet Theatre was known for dancing the classics; New York City Ballet was dancing George Balanchine’s repertoire and developing the Balanchine style of neoclassical ballet. The Joffrey, however, was introducing American audiences to the works of European choreographers Sir Frederick Ashton and John Cranko, and reconstructing and reviving “lost” ballets from Diaghilev’s Ballets Russes like Vaslav Nijinsky’s The Rite of Spring (1913) and Jeux. At the same time, it was pushing the envelope with many “firsts” such as commissioning modern dance choreographer Twyla Tharp to create her first piece on a ballet company – Deuce Coupe (1973) – set to the music of The Beach Boys. Another groundbreaking project for The Joffrey was the creation of Billboards (1973), a full-length program of contemporary ballet performed to the music of Prince.

Artistic Director Robert Joffrey passed away in 1988 and was succeeded by co-founder and chief choreographer Gerald Arpino. The Joffrey moved from New York City to Chicago in 1995 and has been under the artistic direction of Ashley Wheater since 2007.

The mixed-repertoire that the company performs in Detroit is a testament to The Joffrey’s commitment to diverse dance styles, reflective of both the expected and the unexpected. It features three dynamic young choreographers from Europe with works that pay homage to productions of the past while also exploring the unchartered territory of the future.

The program opens with Liam Scarlett’s sensual Vespertine, a sumptuous ode to the Baroque period. Dancers dressed in flowy maroon costumes move under a sky of chandeliers, dancing with the lights themselves to intricate violin compositions.

Nicolas Blanc’s mesmerizing Beyond the Shore, from which the program takes its name, literally takes audiences to another world, six to be exact. Composed to the music of electronic music composer Mason Bates, dancers travel through six distinct landscapes that range from under the sea to a mysterious desert to outer space, featuring original NASA communication samples from the 1965 Gemini IV first space walk.

The program concludes with Alexander Ekman’s self-descriptive Joy, performed to a score that includes text. Dancers clad in fleshtone costumes explore what it means to be joyful, with playful, quirky movements that spread the feeling to the audience.

Whether you are new to The Joffrey or a long-time fan, Michigan Opera Theatre’s presentation of Beyond the Shore is a perfect way to experience The Joffrey Ballet at its finest.
Jon Teeuwissen Discusses His Love for Dance and What He Has in Store for MOT’s Future
A Q&A with MOT’s New Artistic Advisor for Dance

BY ERICA HOBBS

After more than 40 years in the field, Jon Teeuwissen knows a thing or two about dance. He’s worked as a producer, presenter and agent for dance. He’s held leadership positions with major dance companies like The Joffrey Ballet, American Ballet Theatre and the Dance Theatre of Harlem (DTH). He also lists DTH Founder Arthur Mitchell and Joffrey Ballet Co-Founder Gerald Arpino as mentors. In short, he’s kind of a big deal.

This season, Teeuwissen joins Michigan Opera Theatre (MOT) as its new Artistic Advisor for Dance, overseeing all of MOT’s dance programming. Below, he discusses his favorite ballet, his own dancing skills and his vision for the future.

What goals do you have for MOT’s dance program?
The most immediate goal is programming the future dance seasons and building upon the strong dance series that has been established by Carol Halsted. In addition to the selection of companies, I am paying attention to specific repertoire to ensure that our dance audience is exposed to certain choreography and become informed as well as entertained.

There will be greater emphasis on live music for dance. Additional goals include becoming more involved with the Detroit dance community, developing a lecture series for guest choreographers, and enhancing some existing programs. At the end of the day, my overall goal is to elevate dance at MOT to receive an equal amount of focus as opera.

What is your favorite ballet?My favorite ballet would be George Balanchine’s The Four Temperaments. It is one of his “black and white” ballets (tights and leotards) that really focuses on the line of the dancer, with nothing hidden by a costume. For me dance is about expressing and communicating emotion, and this ballet does it in spades! Although it premiered in 1946, the ballet remains completely contemporary.

What style of dance do you think is most underrated?The type of dance that I feel is most underrated is percussive dance – tap, in particular. This is beginning to change a bit with the emergence of choreographer Michelle Dorrance, a 2015 MacArthur Fellow. Not only is the company she founded, Dorrance Dance, receiving countless accolades and touring successfully, but she is becoming a much sought after choreographer.

What about dance do you love most?I love the athleticism, and I love the artistry. I sometimes think of dance as the visualization of music. Most of all, I love the emotion dance conveys. And, I find dance very spiritual and uplifting.

Can you dance?I am so not a dancer. Often people assume I am a dancer because my career has been in dance, but when asked that question, I always reply that I’m a “wannabe.” I love the art form, but I discovered it too late to train. And then there’s the issue of no flexibility or talent...

How did you get into dance?When I was in college, I started keeping the books for a friend’s dance studio. I discovered many of his students were ordering dancewear from a catalog as there was no place locally to purchase, so I opened a Capezio dance shop that became quite successful, and in short order, opened a second store that focused solely on exercise apparel. I learned a lot about dance performance and dance instruction through getting to know my clientele. So I kind of entered dance through retail. And the rest is history.

What are your interests outside of dance?In terms of the arts, I love music as much as dance. Aside from the arts, I love the outdoors and being in nature. Last year I did a through-hike of the Appalachian Trail, hiking 2190 miles from Georgia to Maine in five months and 10 days. It was a life-changing experience. Now to get to the Pacific Crest Trail and The Continental Divide...

What do you think of opera?I’ve had limited exposure to opera, but I loved experiencing the Ring Cycle a few years ago at the Lyric Opera in Chicago, and if you like Wagner, I guess you’ve graduated.

What is something people would be surprised to know about you?My undergraduate is in accounting and I hold a master’s degree from Stanford Graduate School of Business, which perhaps is not the usual background for an arts administration career in dance.

Is there anything else you’d like to add?I have worked with ballet, contemporary dance, aerial dance, Broadway dance, Japanese Butoh dance, tap dance and hip hop. I love all types of dance and never tire of experiencing performances. I am very excited to be working with MOT!

THE NUTCRACKER

Act I
It is Christmas Eve, a night of magic, when anything can happen. The newly fallen snow glistens on the rooftops and excitement is in the air. Herr Drosselmeyer, a very old friend of the Stahlbaum family, passes by their house and leaves an early present for the family. Inside the Stahlbaum house, Clara and Fritz wait as their family makes sure everything is ready for that evening’s grand party. The guests arrive and the fun begins. Of course, there is lots of dancing and many presents.

When Herr Drosselmeyer, who is also Clara’s godfather, comes to the house, magical things always happen. Every year he creates delightful toys unlike anything else in the world. This year he has some very special surprises for Clara and her family. Although Clara loves the lifelike Spanish doll, and Fritz the exciting Chinese doll, they cannot be left for the children to play with. Instead, Drosselmeyer has another very special and unusual gift, a remarkable nutcracker that he gives to Clara. Angered that he too cannot crack nuts with his teeth, Fritz regrettably breaks the nutcracker. Drosselmeyer is quick to repair the nutcracker for Clara, but Fritz is still looking for trouble and finds a rat with which to tease Clara.

Once all the guests leave the party, the Stahlbaums go to bed. Clara is awakened by a strange sound. Worried that her nutcracker is alone downstairs, she goes to find him and falls asleep on the couch. Suddenly, mice surround her. Drosselmeyer is acting very strangely and her nightmare continues as the whole house transforms around her. A menacing Mouse King orders his minions to steal the nutcracker from Clara. The Spanish and Chinese dolls come to help her, but the marauding mice carry them off. Just when Clara thinks all is lost, her nutcracker suddenly comes to life and temporarily scares the mice away. A huge battle between the toy soldiers and the mice follows. The Mouse King is about to defeat the nutcracker, but Clara saves the day. She discovers that by defeating the Mouse King, she has freed the Prince, who had been trapped in the nutcracker, and she understands that Drosselmeyer had a purpose in all the strange things he had done that night. Clara and her Prince pass through a wondrous snowy land as they begin their journey together to his home in the land of the Sugar Plum Fairy.

Act II
News that the Prince is finally returning home reaches the land of the Sugar Plum Fairy, where people from all corners of the world – and the world of the imagination – come to greet Clara and her Nutcracker Prince. After hearing the story of Clara rescuing the Prince, the Sugar Plum Fairy arranges a grand celebration in Clara’s honor, filled with many wondrous surprises, including being reunited with the Spanish doll. “This must be what it’s like,” Clara thinks, “to be inside one of Godfather’s inventions.”

Sadly, the night comes to an end. Even though Clara wants to stay, it is time to leave this enchanted land. Like a wonderful dream, this magical night will stay with her forever.

J. William King – Clarinet

For clarinetist J. William “Bill” King, music is a family passion. Not only is everyone in his immediate family a musician, but they are all reed players. His wife is Professor of Oboe at the University of Michigan, his oldest son is a clarinetist and his youngest son just began his master’s degree in Bassoon Performance. Going further back, Bill said his great-great-grandmother was an opera singer.

“Maybe playing for MOT is some kind of fate,” he said.

Bill’s fate has been 50 years in the making. After playing as a child, he went on to study music as an adult, earning a bachelor’s degree from Arizona State University, a master’s degree from Carnegie Mellon and a doctorate degree from the Eastman School of Music at the University of Rochester.

In addition to playing in the orchestra, he is also the Coordinator of Wind Chamber Music at the University of Michigan School of Music, Theatre, & Dance. In 2008, he also opened Ann Arbor Clarinet Connection, an Authorized Buffet Crampon dealership selling and repairing professional and student instruments.

Bill won the second clarinet/bass clarinet chair in 2006 and said he has enjoyed his experience with the orchestra.

“Opera is my favorite musical genre, so getting to be immersed in its magic in the pit is incredibly rewarding,” he said. “Sitting next to Principal Clarinet Brian Bowman for the past 13 years has been a professional highlight. Favorite runs in my tenure have been Margaret Gardner, The Passenger, Tosca, Turandot, Aida, Rigoletto, Don Giovanni, The Barber of Seville and Elektra.”

Outside of music, Bill enjoys golf, traveling and spending time with his family.

Brittany Lasch – Principal Trombone

With more than two decades of training and performance under her belt, trombonist Brittany Lasch has gained many fans of her talent. But perhaps none are as dedicated as her cat, Fudge, who monitors her practice daily. In fact, a video post of Fudge with Brittany while she plays the trombone went viral, with nearly 500,000 views.

“She lives for the trombone,” Brittany said, “She can’t get close enough to the bell when I practice.”

Brittany comes to Detroit after training throughout different cities in the United States. Originally from Park Ridge, Illinois, she moved to the East Coast for college, receiving her undergraduate degree at the Manhattan School of Music, a master’s degree at the Yale School of Music and her doctorate from Boston University.

Though she now commutes from Ohio, she said she loves spending time in Detroit.

“The Detroit Opera House is stunning!” she said. “It reminds me of the Met in New York City where I spent so much of my time in college. I’m a city person and getting to come up to Detroit from Ohio a few times a week energizes me and makes the drive worth it every time.”

Outside of Michigan Opera Theatre (MOT), Brittany is a trombone professor at the College of Musical Arts at Bowling Green State University. She is also a passionate runner and has completed the Toledo Marathon twice and the Detroit Marathon this year.

Brittany is now in her second season with MOT and said the best part so far was the 2018 Gala with Renée Fleming.

“One of the songs she sang was ‘You’ll Never Know’ from the movie The Shape of Water, which had a few small jazz trombone solos,” she said. “It was fun for a brief moment to be directly collaborating with Ms. Fleming.”

Rackham Choir
Too Hot To Handel Orchestra
With the Too Hot Trio:
Marion Hayden, David Taylor and Alvin Waddles

Lighting Design: Kendall Smith
Stage Manager: Ellen Peck

Original Concept by Marin Alsop
Co-arranged and orchestrated by Bob Christianson and Gary Anderson

Too Hot To Handel is a co-production of Rackham Choir and the Detroit Opera House

The Concordia Orchestra of New York City commissioned Too Hot To Handel in 1993, from arrangers Bob Christianson and Gary Anderson. Since the first performance at Lincoln Center, crowds have smiled, cheered and danced in their seats (and sometimes in the aisles!). Too Hot captures the essential core of Handel’s famous masterwork and reinterprets it with chords of rhythm and blues, jazz and gospel. The end result? A dynamic and uplifting celebration that must be experienced. Simply put: Too Hot To Handel is Messiah recreated.

Music on loan from the archives of the Concordia Orchestra, Marin Alsop, founding music director and conductor.

PART I
Sinfony
Comfort ye
Every valley
And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed
Thus saith the Lord
But who may abide the day of His coming
And He shall purify
Behold, a virgin shall conceive
O thou that tellest good tidings to Zion
For behold, darkness shall cover the earth
The people that walked in darkness
For unto us a child is born
There were shepherds abiding in the field
And suddenly there was the angel
Glory to God
Intermission

Part II
Rejoice greatly
Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened
He shall feed his flock
His yoke is easy
Behold the Lamb of God
Surely He hath borne our griefs **
All we like sheep have gone astray
Behold, I tell you a mystery
The trumpet shall sound
The Lord gave the word
Why do the nations so furiously rage
Hallelujah!

This fund enables Michigan Opera Theatre to produce compelling opera, present innovative dance, and engage with thousands of students and members of our community through our educational and outreach programs. Most importantly, it allows MOT to preserve David’s legacy and his dedication to the young people of Southeast Michigan and young emerging artists from all over the country. To contribute or for more info, please visit www.michiganopera.org or contact Colin Knapp, Manager of Donor Engagement at 313.965.4271 or cknapp@motopera.org.

Michigan Opera Theatre

www.MichiganOpera.org
Greetings from the MOT Volunteer Association.

I have been a music lover for many years and Michigan Opera Theatre is very important to me. Our MOTVA volunteers provide the company a tremendous level of support. We have over 700 members who serve as ushers, tour guides, and Boutique volunteers. Our Divas and Divos provide artist hospitality, and the Opera League and Dance Council members host parties to celebrate events such as opening night performances. Last year our members logged almost 20,000 volunteer hours. Bravi!

If you are hearing about our volunteer programs for the first time and you would be interested in joining us, please give us a call. Volunteering is a great way to meet other interesting and involved patrons. Membership information is located on the MOTVA web page at michiganopera.org/get-involved/volunteers/ or call Colin Knapp at (313) 965-4271 or email cknapp@motopera.org. Colin will be happy to speak with you and connect you with a volunteer opportunity to meet your needs.

I offer my sincere thanks to all of our current volunteers. You are THE BEST!
